MailScan For Linux Achieves Novell Ready Status

By CXOtoday Staff

Mumbai, Nov 17, 2004

MicroWorld Software Services, developers of anti-virus and content security software, eScan and MailScan, announced today that MailScan for Linux has joined the Novell Ready Program.

This status establishes that MicroWorld's products are now compatible with Novell

Enterprise Linux. The product was awarded Novell Ready status for SuSE Linux desktop, Enterprise Server 8, 9 and the SuSE Linux Standard server.

With the increased penetration of GNU/Linux as an alternate operating system for server and desktops, attacks on GNU/Linux based machines have increased. About 90% of the viruses today enter the organizations via Internet and through emails.

According to the company, MailScan for Linux answers all these needs and joining this program would help MicroWorld establish its products competitively in the GNU/Linux market.

Among its features are the SMTP service, an anti-virus engine, with standard spam and content filtering. It uses RBL and/or DUL for spam prevention, which is configurable.

The product is ideal for ISPs, SMEs and large corporates working on the Linux platform.
